Rebuild SoCal Partnership: Infrastructure Matters

The Promise of Infrastructure Investment

- Jobs for working families.
- Component of equitable climate change mitigations.
- Foundation of a strong economy.

In a rapidly changing climate, thoughtful considerations for infrastructure planning and investments will address multiple interconnected challenges.

Infrastructure drives economic growth and improves the quality of life for residents of Southern California, speeding goods movement and improving health and safety for residents.

What Equitable Infrastructure Investment Looks Like:

1. Boosting Infrastructure Spending
2. Prioritizing Disadvantaged Communities
3. Creating Multimodal Transportation Networks
4. Enhancing Water Security and Infrastructure
5. Investing in Workers
6. Utilizing Data and Technology
7. Monitoring and Measuring Progress

LOSSAN: An opportunity for investment to increase transit accessibility, expand transportation options, maintain strategically critical networks and connect people to universities, hospitals and job centers.
